

Journeys of Faith: Passover and Eucharist

Imagine that you are taking part in the first Passover. It is evening, and your family has followed Moses's instructions. The blood of a lamb has been sprinkled on the door so that the angel of death will pass over your home. Now you and your family are solemnly eating a meal together, dressed for a journey. Soon God will lead your people out of slavery in Egypt to your own land. As you await the journey to begin, what are your thoughts, fears, and hopes?

Now imagine that you are standing before the Lord's table about to celebrate the Eucharist. In front of you, the priest holds the bread and wine, which become the Body and Blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. God is about to feed you, and he wants you to feed others. As you receive the Eucharist, you are invited on a journey of faith to help bring love and healing to those in need. What are your thoughts, fears, and hopes?
